

CLAIMS

1. An estimation requesting method in electronic business, comprising the steps of:

5 storing in advance estimation requesting document form information in a server of an information supplier that is connected to an Internet;

10 calling an estimation requesting document form from a homepage of the information supplier by an information desiring person; inputting prescribed items to the estimation requesting document form; and sending a completed estimation requesting document to the information supplier, 15 whereby the information desiring person directly requests the information supplier to make an estimate.

2. The estimation requesting method according to claim 1, wherein a subject of estimation requesting is insurance such as car insurance.

3. An estimation requesting method in electronic business, comprising the steps of:

25 storing in advance estimation requesting document form information in a server of an information supplier that is connected to an Internet;

giving the server a function of urging an information desiring person to input desired service contents to an estimation requesting document form when the information desiring person has called the estimation requesting document 5 form from a homepage of the information supplier; inputting prescribed items to the estimation requesting document form; and sending a completed estimation requesting document to the information supplier,

10 whereby the information desiring person directly requests the information supplier to make an estimate.

4. The estimation requesting method according to claim
3, wherein a subject of estimation requesting is insurance such 15 as car insurance.

5. An estimation requesting system in electronic business, comprising:

a server of an information supplier connected to a terminal 20 apparatus of an information desiring person through an Internet, wherein the server comprises,

a main program which is stored in advance in the server;
an estimation requesting document form information file which is stored in advance in the server;

25 an estimation requesting document information file, having service contents to be input to an estimation requesting document form, which is stored in advance in the server;

an input/output control section for urging the information desiring person to input desired service contents when he has called, through the terminal apparatus, the estimation requesting document form from a homepage of the information 5 supplier; and a control section for performing processing according to the main program.

6. The estimation requesting system according to claim 10 5, wherein a subject of estimation requesting is insurance such as car insurance.